The DIMMER VIEW

by Max Goodwin

Teachers Show Election Concern

School elections, once the happiest type of expression from supporters of education, are beginning to take on the atmosphere of the Watergate mess.

Not that anyone is involved in "bugging" in the sense of eavesdropping although factions now "bug" each other in the sense of "irritate."

This irritation is showing up in the ranks of voters and has created a gulf of growing dissatisfaction between them and the school districts they once supported wholeheartedly.

Most district residents no longer believe that trustees are as prudent with the district bankroll as they once were. Proof of this is in the growing negative pressures on school money measures. They're getting harder to pass. Locally, at the high school level, the district has upset many supporters with its unusual planning and funding program of the new Valhalla High school. The district that could do no wrong is now having problems convincing people that it can do anything right.

Another irritant appears to be the emergence of teachers' organizations as activists in trustee elections. This is happening at both the Grossmont High school and at the Lemon Grove Elementary school levels.

In both districts, teacher groups have interviewed candidates and are giving endorsements to those with qualities most suitable to the interests of the teachers.

"A conflict of interest" is the resultant howl! But is it?

Let's touch lightly on the picture as a whole rather than on specifics.

There is a growing fear that minority interest groups that have risen in some districts can wrest the district's control away from majority interest voters. Since voter turnout for school elections is alarmingly small, an activist group might elect enough trustees to create an imbalance on the school board.

In the Grossmont High School district the Valhalla unrest is the probable cause of a teachers' group giving endorsement to candidates there.

Teachers have a vested interest in their working conditions. Whether they have too many rights and get paid too much money is beside the point. They do have a higher interest in their jobs than outsiders. They also have a vested interest in seeing that their districts have sound programs. This gives them the right to interview candidates and make endorsements. They also have a legal right!

When such organizations did rise up in Grossmont High school and Lemon Grove Elementary districts, some of those candidates who did not receive endorsements felt that they were being discrimnated against — and by the people who are on district payrolls.

We don't think this charge is valid. Here's why.

There is a hazard involved with a candidate being endorsed by teachers. Voters tend to believe that these candidates will be obligated to teachers in a sort of separation-of-church-and-state reaction. Maybe some of the teachers believe it, too. Teachers' organizations have enough problems without having to play palsy-walsy with trustees. From the day of teacher endorsement many teachers and most voters will believe that a deal was made between the candidate and the endorsing group.

So what happens? If the candidate is elected, everything he votes on is suspect. Other trustees will always have this queasiness in their minds. Of more importance is the thinking of the candidate himself. How will it influence his thinking? If a matter comes up regarding a benefit for teachers, he might, influenced by his sensitivity to criticism stemming from the endorsement, vote against it — to purge himself of the cross he has had to bear as a result of the endorsement.

He has become a captive of the endorsement because he is denying himself the privilege of free thinking.

There is probably no better way of obtaining a fair evaluation of candidates for school boards than through a teachers' group. They know the problems. They can get a clear picture of the candidate's ability through his answers. And they know the hazards which can stem from their endorsement. They are willing to suffer the criticism if it helps avert disruptive forces in the district they serve.

This dissertation is offered as a guide for candidates rather than a critique of the teaching profession. Put more bluntly, a candidate should think twice before grabbing for an endorsement that may color his judgment.

Turner, who, along with his wife, Lucille, lives in Lemon Grove, was recently appointed personnel director of Home Federal Savings, it was announced by Kim Fletcher, president of the firm. Conference Called 'Highly Successful'

The Citizen Advisory Council to Mount Miguel High School held its first community conference March 24 at the school.

The conference, attended by 98 citizens, parents, students, alumni, and school officials, was dubbed highly successful by conference chairman Frank Shughrue and by Mt. Miguel principal Robert Pyle.

The conference, which ran from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., was divided into two sessions, with the morning session devoted to listing complaints, gripes, and those things the attendees thought were keeping the school from functioning the way it should.

The afternoon session dealt with the positive side, as those in attendance listed possible solutions to problems identified in the morning session.

Some of the comments which were considered centered around community apathy, educational practice, communication problems, school operation, and student attitudes toward school.

Community apathy, according to the findings of the conference, is a real problem created, in part, by a lack of communication between the school and the community. News of the school is available, it was determined, but the community in general has failed to take an interest.

A lack of communication from the school to the community was cited as a major reason for a lack of communication from the community to the school, resulting in an apathetic community.

The school was also criticized for insufficient vocational education and skill training. The conference identified the school's education practice as including too much emphasis on college.

Insufficient funds from federal sources and misuse of funds available were identified as possible problems concerning the school's operation.

Separation of ninth grade students from upperclassmen, caused by double sessions at the school due to overcrowding, affect student attitudes toward school, the conference determined.

CPO Vote Weight To Be Shifted

By Dick Sims
County News Association

SAN DIEGO — The Comprehensive Planning Organization on April 16 will spread the weighted vote around some more, if things go predictibly.

The new formula is a simple doubling of the votes of the 12 cities smaller than San Diego and the large city would retain its 40 votes.

The county has chosen to not join the new joint powers agreement that gives San Diego 40 votes to 30 for the county and this has led to a rather strange situation.

The votes are not a percentage of the members — that is, votes are counted one by one, not by percentage.

At present, for an issue to pas, 51 votes are needed and at least five cities must vote on the affirmative side for an issue to pass.

CPO had a disputed vote on the assignment of $5.5 million to the San Diego Transit System (out of $6.8 million in newly available transportation funds).

This vote gained 51 percent, but would have failed had not San Marcos provided the 51st vote.

The county could not have halted the move even if it were a member of CPO and had cast its 30 votes in opposition to the San Diego proposition.

String Training Opens For Foothills Musicians

The Spring Semester of the Foothills String Training orchestra is open for new members.

The training orchestra, under the direction of Glenn Block, conductor of the S.D. Chamber orchestra, meets Saturday mornings 9-11 in El Cajon.

The program is designed to prepare string players for eventual membership in the Civic Youth or, Youth Symphony orchestra.

Rehearsals are held in Library Hall opposite the Central Fire Station in City Center complex.

Tuition is $7.50. Call 448-5760, 442-8691 or attend Saturday's rehearsal.

'Valhalla Under State Allowable Cost' – Sellery

Grossmont District's 9th High School — Valhalla, "is not planned to open with flexible scheduling, its funding will not cut into the quality of our existing program, and the school is less expensive than many other traditionally designed plants of the same size," Dr. Austin Sellery, the district's superintendent said this week.

The project has created controversy regarding its funding and construction following a money issue passed by voters in 1967. Approval of a construction bid March 26 was $6,226,000.

Sellery said the school's cost was $333,000 below the 'State Aid Allowable' (total) for square footage." He said site preparation cost was $111,000 below Allowable. The figures were developed by the school's architect Ron Young.

When Valhalla was planned, the District was looking at abut $4 million. Just before the bid the amount had risen to $5 million. That estimate was more than a million dollars shy.

The necessary funding was generated by a 28.5 cent increase in high school taxes which was levied this year.

A district spokesman said that the $6¼ million bid would bring the facility to 80% completion. There was no indication as to where the remaining 20% was coming from but that may be several years in the future.

Helix Pops Concert Set

"Command Performance" will present seven Helix groups in this year's Pops Concert tonight and Friday in the gym.

Nearly 200 students will be performing in special numbers featuring the bagpipe, cadet, concert and stage bands, orchestra, the hi-steppers and the letter and banner corps.

Nine Aida trumpets to herald the opening of the program will help carry out the British theme, announced Gerald Kirk, director. In addition, the program will include band numbers by uniformed Highlanders such as "Stars and Stripes Forever" and themes from "How the West was Won".

The orchestra will play music from "Hair" and the stage band will feature "Funky Shuffle" with a dance routine presented by the hi-steppers. The letter and banner corps are rehearsing an old fashioned square dance as well as the "can can". Attorney Alan Perry, a former band parent, will be the commentator.

Tickets for performances may be purchased from band and corps members or at the door. They are $1 for students and $1.50 for adults. Proceeds will help cover the expenses of the band on competition trips out of town.

Attendants to the queen are Dorthea Metzger and Denise Archibald.

Park Completion Back in Sight

The completion of the Spring Valley Park on Jamacha rd. near Sweetwater rd., which has been slowed by red tape and financial problems, is back in the sights of the Spring Valley Park and Recreation Department.

The park, which is open to the public for use of the minimum facilities that have been completed, is hoped to be finished this summer, according to Herb Ketell, chairman of the Park and Recreation Department's park committee.

Money has been assigned for the construction of a stage, complete with dressing rooms and restrooms, a lighted display fountain, children's play equipment and lighting.

Additionally, Ketell announced, the Spring Valley Woman's Club has donated over $250 for construction of a drinking fountain for the park. A plaque will be imbedded in the concrete fountain in appreciation of the donation.

Plans for the final phase of the park construction will probably be finished next month, Ketell said, with bidding in May and construction beginning in June or July.

HelixOK's Guidelines For CEQA

A set of guidelines to enable board and staff members to comply with the California Environmental Quality Act as amended in 1972 were adopted last week by the Helix Water District Board of Directors.

Under the guidelines, an environmental impact report must be prepared for any project which may have a significant effect on the environment.

"It is our hope that under these guidelines we can encourage public participation in our decisions concerning major projects," said Helix President Harry Griffen in announcing the new policy.

He pointed out the purpose of CEQA is to assure public officials they have full information before making decisions which might effect the environment adversely.

Small projects, work required by law where the Helix board has no discretionary power, projects in which another public agency has major jurisdiction, and replacements of existing works may be covered by a Preliminary Environmental Assessment rather than a full report.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

I am appealing to you to join with me in dealing with one of our state's growing environmental problems — the non-returnable or throwaway beverage container.

A once beautiful California is rapidly becoming the dumping ground for all too many of the 48 billion cans and 28 billion bottles discarded by Americans every year. Each day in California there are 10 million non-returnable beer and soft drink containers sold, many of which join the heaps of rubble which clutter our highways and choke our streams. It costs American taxpayers nearly $1.5 million each year to collect and dispose of beverage containers alone. In addition to the solid waste disposal and litter crisis, "flip-tops" of metal beverage containers and fragments of throwaway bottles present a major safety threat to consumers. Something must be done — now!

Several of my colleagues have joined with me in introducing legislation requiring a minimum 5 cent refund on all beer and soft drink containers sold in California on or after January 1, 1975. The bill, AB 594, would also ban any metal beverage container so designed that part of the container is detachable without the aid of a can opener. I am convinced that enactment of this measure will reduce the tremendous defilement of our parks, beaches, and highways, lessen the strain on our state's already over-burdened solid waste disposal system, and make beverage containers safer for consumers.

Several similar bills have been defeated in both the Assembly and Senate in past years; however, I believe that AB 594 will have a better chance of passage because of the successful implementation of similar legislation in the State of Oregon in October of last year and completion of several studies concluding the necessity for legislation like AB 594. Still, only public pressure — a mandate from the people — will spare AB 594 from the fate of well financed lobbying by the beverage industry.

Sincerely,
Julian C. Dixon,
Asemblyman
63rd Assembly District

Learn Spanish The Easy Way

Hardison's Telespanish

"Soy americano" is a phrase that demonstrates some of the grammatical differences between Spanish and English. It means "I am an American." Upon comparing the two phrases you will not that it requires four English words to express the same idea with only two words in Spanish.

"Yo soy" may be used to express "I am." Most frequently the word "yo" (I) is dropped from this phrase leaving the verb "soy" to convey the same meaning. In the expression "un americano" (an American) the "un" is dropped when this expression follows a verb, thus "Soy americano." (I am an American.). We may also observe that the names for nationalities like "americano, mexicano" (American, Mexican) do not begin with capital letters in Spanish.

"Ricardo es estudiante" means "Richard is a student." This is another example where a noun following a verb drops the related article "un" in Spanish but the related English article "a" is required for clarity.

"Ella es maestra." is translated word-for-word "She is teacher." but correctly converted it would be "She is a teacher." This points out again how the article is dropped in Spanish when the noun is the name of a profession or nationality and follows the verb.

If the noun is modified by an adjective as in "americano bueno" (good American) or "buen americano" the phrase usually includes the article as in "El es un buen americano." (He is a good American.) and "Ricard es un estudiante inteligente." (Richard is an intelligent student.).

Practice sentences below demonstrate some examples in which the article appears with the predicate noun and a related adjective. When the adjective is removed, the article is removed also. Practice them on the telephone 276-2762.

IMPORTANT PHRASES:

Say "Ella es una americana buena." (EH-yah ehs OO-nah ah-meh-ree-KAH-nah boo-EH-nah) for "She is a good American."

Say "Ella es americana." (EH-yah ehs ah-meh-ree-KAH-nah) for "She is an American."

Say "El es un maestro bueno." (EHL ehs oon mah-EHS-troh boo-EH-noh) for "He is a good teacher."

Say "El es maestro." (EHL ehs ma-EHS-troh) for "He is a teacher."

Say "Ella es enfermera." (EH-yah ehs ehn-fehr-MEH-rah) for "She is a nurse."

Say "Ella es una mujer buena." (EH-yah ehs OO-nah moo-HEHR boo-EH-nah) for "She is a good woman."

United Way Honors 200 Organizations

Some 200 area companies and organizations whose employees compiled outstanding giving records in support of last year's United Way campaign were honored at an awards dinner last Thursday evening at El Cortez Hotel.

Recognized for their voluntary leadership of solicitation efforts in firms throughout the county were nearly 300 "company keymen" — men and women who headed in-plant drives which won "fair share honor" or "merit awards."

Awards were made on the percentage of employees who gave according to "fair share" standards — nationally recognized as one hour's pay per month or one per cent of annual income.

The United Way, until this year known as the United Crusade, raised more than $6.3 million for over seventy local agencies and services.

James F. Mulvaney, chairman of the 1972 campaign, and president of United States National Bank, presided at the meeting. He and campaign vice chairman R. R. Richardson, secretary-treasurer, San Diego-Imperial Counties Labor Council, shared in the awards presentations.

Georgian is Lecturer At Christ Science Meet

Everyone can find more fulfillment in life through expressing Godlike qualities, a Christian Science lecturer told an audience in La Mesa, Tuesday.

Human occupations vary, but everyone has the same basic purpose, "to witness to God, to express God," Harry S. Smith, C.S.B., of Atlanta, Georgia stated.

"We fulfill this purpose," he said, "in the degree that we actively express His spiritual qualities — love, joy, health, vitality, intelligence, understanding."

His lecture, entitled "Don't Just Exist! Live!" was presented under the auspices of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, La Mesa. Mrs. Mary B. Baker introduced the lecturer.

"Witnessing to God," Smith said, "means elevating spiritual values in our lives, not material ones. This is our real purpose. This is vital to lasting happiness and fulfillment."

Early Entries In For 1973 Scout Fair

More than fifty entries already have been received for the 23rd annual Scout Fair to be held at the Del Mar Fairgrounds May 12, Knud Antonsen, participation chairman, said last week.

The early return of entry blanks indicates the fair will be the largest and most varied in history, Antonsen predicted.

Cub Pack 204 headed by Jeri Jones, is planning a pinewood derby. An exhibit on drug abuse is being prepared by Troop 351 under the direction of W. B. Duncan.

Dorothy J. Clark, leader of Pack 797, said that the pack will sponsor a nail driving contest.

"Each unit is free to do its own thing," said Antonsen. A brochure that was mailed out to each unit leader with the entry blanks had more than 100 suggestions for participation such as ceremonial devices, fingerprinting, band concert and papermaking.

Each display will be assigned to one of the 11 major areas of endeavor. Theme of this year's Fair is "The Wonderful World of Scouting."

In addition to preparing exhibits, scouts also are launching a county-wide ticket campaign. Ducats are $1 each and they entitle the purchaser to see the entire fair including a grandstand show that will feature outstanding professional entertainment.

Scouts, their units, and the San Diego County Council all share in the proceeds of the fair, general chairman Bob Arnhym said.

'Visitation Sunday' At Trininty Presbyterian

Sunday, April 8, is designated as "Visitation Sunday" at the Trinity Presbyterian Church. The program is carried on by the Fellowship and Membership commission of the church, with Kenneth Klein as chairman.

Other members of the committee, which is headed by Mrs. Louis Marbourg, include Mrs. Joseph Ouellette, of Lemon Grove, and Mrs. Donald Norvell, of Spring Valley.

Karl Ulle, Jr., who has served as the Easter bunny in prior egg hunts, will once again be on hand to pass out stuffed bunnies and Easter baskets to the youngsters, who will use the baskets as they find colored eggs and candies.

Donations from local businessmen and merchants of candy, baskets, and stuffed toys help defray expenses for the hunt.

Two Grossmont College Students Win Awards

Two Grossmont College students were among eight Area IV winners in the Bank of America California Community College Awards Program.

Richard J. Kepner won in the business category, while Derald B. Thompon won in the technical-vocational class.

The eight students now advance to the Southern California finals May 2 at the Los Angeles Hilton Hotel where they will have a chance at four $2,000 first place awards. Second place awards will be $1,000 and third place winners each will receive $500. Area winners are assured of at least $250 each.

At the recent area competition, held at Mission Valley Inn in San Diego, four students from each of the nine participating community colleges appeared before a panel of business and civic leaders to discuss an unannounced subject related to their field of study.

The program, in its third year, is an outgrowth of the statewide bank's former Business Awards and Man and Woman of the Year Awards which financially benefited more than 2,800 college students in 18 years.

Nearly 400 California community college students will receive cash awards this year, with a concurrent program being held in Northern California. The new program expands the bank's former competition by including more academic areas, involving more students and increasing the amount of cash awards.

Along with the Community College Awards program, the bank also has a broad program for outstanding high school students. The long-standing Bank of America Achievement Awards have distributed more than $1.5 million in cash awards since 1948.

WELCOME HOME — More than 2,000 persons packed the streets near the home of recenily-released ex-POW Major Carl Lasiter in La Mesa, as he arrived home after five years in a North Vietnam prison. Major Lasiter was "adopted" by the Heartland Youth for Decency that year. On hand to greet Lasiter were bands from Helix, Grossmont, and Patrick Henry High Schools, color guards from the Lemon Grove VFW, as well as civic officials and well-wishers. Action was Friday afternoon.

Tickets to Golf Classic Limited

The Comedians' Golf Classic, which for the past three years, has held its fun-fest in the San Diego area, will again, be staged at La Costa C. C. on May 17, 18 and 19th, it was announced by Chairman of this year's event, Buddy Hackett. "What some people don't realize," said Hackett, "is that our annual get together is a private party, but so many people wanted to watch, we started selling tickets for charity. It was getting to be too much like other tournaments, as far as handling the gallery is concerned, so, we figured if we limit the attendance to 3,000 per day, La Costa won't have to put up ropes, or keep people out of the clubhouse or any of that stuff other tournaments do," Hackett explained. "We give our tickets free to local charities concerned with handicapped children and urge them to sell them and keep the money for their own projects."

Dr. Charles Graham, of Friends of Handicapped Children, an organization made up of representatives of many San Diego associations serving the disabled, is coordinating the distribution of these tickets.

Dr. Graham explained that admission will be $5 (or more) donation for each day, Friday, May 18, and Saturday, May 19, and all tickets must be obtained in advance as there will be no tickets available at the gate. When the 3,000 tickets are gone, that will be it, Graham said.

Tickets will be available starting April 10 from various organizations, including Los Ninos Remedial Center, Association for the Retarded, Special Olympics, Revere Development Center, Hornblend Activity Center, Handicapped Music Foundation, Recreational Services for the Handicapped, and others. Tickets may also be obtained at all 14 Home Federal Savings & Loan Assn. offices.

FIRST AID — Students at Avondale School in Spring Valley have recently studied first aid, as taught by school nurse Verna Puckett. Mrs. Puckett is shown as she illustrates the proper way to handle an injured arm and use a sling. Under the program, students not only learn first aid, but must practice it on one another. Other topics the class has covered include artificial respiration and control of bleeding.

Dierdorff To Head Aztec Club Drive

The Aztec Club, launching its first membership drive in 12 years without Don Coryell as football coach of the San Diego State University Aztecs, has named Dan W. Dierdorff drive chairman.

Hoping to raise $205,000 in this year's campaign, which starts May 1, the Aztec Club is a civic booster organization supporting football and all other intercollegiate sports at the university.

Dierdorff, a 1960 graduate of San Diego State, is a vice president of San Diego Federal Savings & Loan Association and is manager of its Fashion Valley branch office.

The club needs to reach its 1973 goal, Dierdorff said, to "start the Claude Gilbert football regime off on the right foot and to keep all other programs on their upward drives."

Close Not Good Enough For Mt. Miguel Teams

Nothing came easy for Mt. Miguel sports teams last week, as the Matadors came close but were denied victory on the track and the baseball diamond.

On Friday afternoon, the Matadors hosted the El Capitan Vaqueros in search of victory in the league baseball race. Both teams were 1-2 on the season going into the game.

Things didn't go too well for the Miguel batters, as they could muster only two hits in the first six innings, while ace pitcher Steve Long gave up two runs in the first inning and another in the third inning.

Trailing by a 3-0 score, Mt. Miguel woke up in the bottom of the third frame to tally a lone run, making it 3-1. It stayed that way until the bottom of the seventh inning, when El Capitan pitcher, Jeff Byrd lost his control and walked five men, tying the score and sending the game in extra innings.

The eighth and ninth innings went by uneventfully, but in the top of the tenth, it was Mt. Miguel pitcher Steve Long's turn to blow up, as the Vaqueros jumped on him for four runs, taking a 7-3 lead which was never lost.

The loss put Mt. Miguel at 1-3 on the season, tied for 6th place in the standings. The team will try to re-group for a game tomorrow at 3 p.m. against the Santana Sultans at Santana.

For the Matador track and field team, things were similar.

Although the Spring Valley team looked better than it did early in the seasn, particularly in the high jump, long jump, and triple jump, Grossmont picked up important victories on the track to claim a 70-66 decision.

The real battleground for the meet, which was as even as it was expected to be, was in the distance events, where George Pullen and Rick Debus fought it out in the mile and two-mile.

Pullen, the county's best miler this season, had to turn in a fantastic 4:17.4 effort to beat Debus, who placed second in his specialty for the first time this season. Pullen went on to claim the two-mile in leading the 'Hillers to their first track victory.

Prior to the meet with Mt. Miguel, Grossmont tied with Granite Hills and lost by two points to co-league leaders and undefeated Helix and El Capitan.

Mt. Miguel looked its best in four meets and will try to continue in the role of spoiler tomorrow afternoon when Helix visits the Spring Valley school. The two schools are arch-rivals and both looked good last week, so the meet should be a good one.

Naval Academy and commissioner of the Pacific-8 conference. He is now part of a group of local businessmen who have formed a National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame chapter in San Diego. The football organization becomes part of more than 100 chapters nationally.

Moomaw, who is currently Minister of the Bel Air Presbyterian Church, will address an estimated 400 people, who will honor 14 of the county's most outstanding scholar-athletes.

The honor banquet on April 25 is open to the public and tickets for the affair can be purchased for $12.50 each. They can be obtained from Allan Brown, 642 San Diego Trust & Savings Building, San Diego 92101.

Excellent seats in all price ranges remain for Friday night's opener, as well as for Saturday night and Sunday afternoon games also with the Dodgers.

The Padres Stadium ticket windows open daily at 9 a.m.

Boosted by the excellent spring performances of rookies Dave Hilton and Johnny Grubb, the steady improvement of an already established pitching staff and the continued presence of such potent offensive stars such as Nate Colbert, Leron Lee and Cito Gaston, the Padres are confident of moving up in the Western Division standings.

Third baseman Hilton has been outstanding in the exhibition contests and Grubb has filed a strong claim for regular service in the outfield.

Vicente Romo has boosted an immensely improved bullpen, Dave Marshall has provided never-before pinch hitting punch and the growing ability of Jerry Morales has been eminently noticeable all spring.

Then there is exciting Dave Roberts, experienced after an excellent rookie season, a greatly improved Enzo Hernandez and the starting pitchers Steve Arlin, Clay Kirby, Fred Norman, Mike Caldwell and Mike Corkins who provide San Diego with one of the strongest staffs in baseball.

Opening night fans will be given their first look at the new outfield fences that have shortened appreciably home run distances in left-center, center and right-center areas.

Pre-game ceremonies, starting at 6:55, include the Naval Training Center Drum and Bugle Corps and the NTC crack Fifty State Flag Company, the Marine Corps Recruit Depot Band and the award winning Naval Reserve Color Guard.

On Saturday night following the Padres-Dodgers contest, the Padres will present a huge fireworks display.

The Padres have won three of their previous four home openers, defeating Atlanta last year, 6-5. This is the first time the Dodgers have participated in a Padre opener.

The largest opening game crowd was in 1971 when 34,554 paid to see the Padres play the Giants.

Track and Field Meet Lists Sixty-One Events

For the fourteenth year, the San Diego Track Club presents the San Diego Relays, offering high-level track and field competition in six classifications, ranging from outstanding junior high school and girl runners, to world-class open and college competitors.

The April 14 event will attract more than 600 athletes in the 61 events.

Early Open-University class entrants include Britisher Richard Sliney, who last year led 7 other runners (including now-pro George Young) to sub-29 minute 6 mile times with his fine 27:45.9. Miler Dick Selby, who beat Bob Messina (also turned pro) 4:03.3 to 4:03.6 last year, will also be back.

In the field events, former San Diegan Vic Dias won the pole vault at 17'-0" in 1972 and will be returning this year as a representative of the Bay Area Striders (Oakland). Jim Penrose of the Bay Area Striders will be challenging giant John Van Reenan's 1972 Relays record of 202'-10½" in the discus.

Shot putter Bruce Wilhelm, who topped 66' late last year could threaten the Relays record of 65'-10" set by Al Feuerbach in 1972.

Also competing in the Open class shot put will be San Diego Mesa College's Bruce Adams, far and away the best J. C. shot putter in California.

Hollywood Finish Marks 4-3 Monte Vista Victory

The earned run average of Clay Fox suffered last Friday, as did the chances of Helix taking the Grossmont League title, as Monte Vista outfought the Helix nine in a game that was more exciting than one that might have been dreamed up by a Hollywood script-writer.

The hero of the story was Monte Vista catcher Louis LeLaurin and that's his real name, as he personally did away with Fox by belting a last-inning home run that turned out to be the winning score.

In his full day's work, LeLaurin collected two hits in three trips to the plate, scored twice, hit a sacrifice, and collected an RBI in boosting his previously anemic batting average to a respectable .300.

The game started out as expected, as Fox and Monte Vista ace Dave Munoz were engaged in a pitching battle for the first four innings, as only three hits were notched and no runs scored.

In the top of the fifth inning, however, Monte Vista twirler Munoz belted a double off Fox with one out to start a rally. Ken Randel then blooped one back to the mound, but Fox, attempting to cut down Munoz at third base, threw wide and Munoz scored.

LeLaurin walked to the plate and completely unnerved Fox by belting a solid single, putting two men on base with only one out. Ken Margulis picked up a pair of RBIs by blasting a double to give Monte Vista the lead.

Leading 3-2 after six innings, Monte Vista added an insurance run in the top of the seventh when LeLaurin hit a solo homer off a Fox changeup to make it 4-2.

The Hollywood finish came when Steve Baker, who relieved Munoz in the sixth inning, gave up a walk, a single and an error to make the score 4-3 with nobody out and a runner on base.

Baker worked hard, but he couldn't quite catch the corners of the plate, and before long he walked the bases full with two men out. He ran the count to 3 and 2 before he fired one by Highlander third baseman Bob Riehle to end the game.

The victory left Monte Vista all alone atop the standings at 4.0.

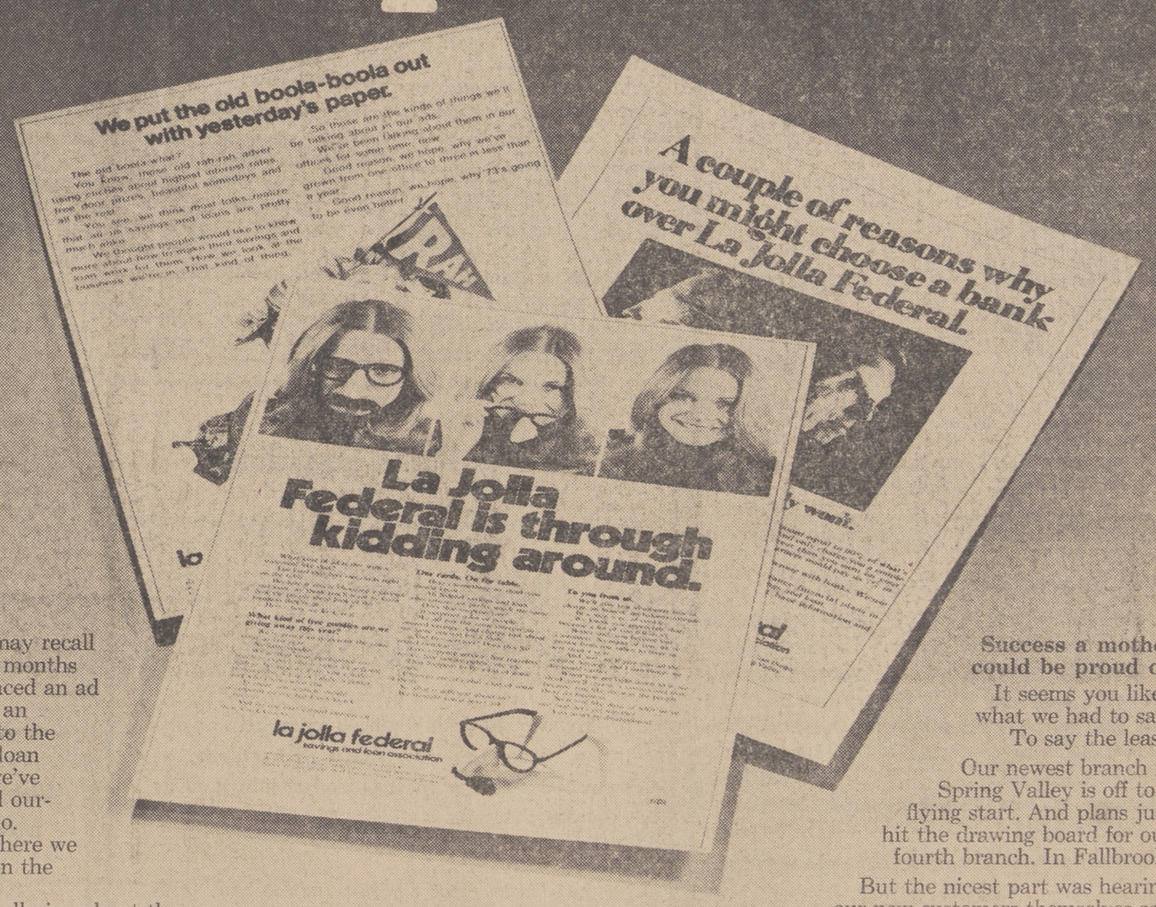
Is La Jolla Federal still on the soapbox?



We put the old boola-boola out with yesterday's paper.
A couple of reasons why you might choose a bank over La Jolla Federal.
La Jolla Federal is through kidding around.
la jolla federal
savings and loan association

You may recall that some months ago we placed an ad discussing an approach to the savings & loan business we've committed ourselves to do.

Well, here we are. Still on the soapbox.

Still hollering about the things we want our business to be built on.

You see, we pointed out that because most of us Federal Savings & Loan Associations are very much alike, it seemed a little silly to try and convince you otherwise.

So we stopped talking about highest interest rates. Lowest loan rates. Free goodies to folks who come in the door. And all the rest of that stuff.

Instead, we went another route.

Our ads started talking about some of the specific differences between a bank and a savings & loan. How a bank might even be better for your needs sometimes. How our real estate loans work.

Straight, basic information.

Some people said we were crazy.

Were they in for a surprise.

Success a mother could be proud of.

It seems you liked what we had to say. To say the least.

Our newest branch in Spring Valley is off to a flying start. And plans just hit the drawing board for our fourth branch. In Fallbrook.

But the nicest part was hearing our new customers themselves say they agreed with us 100%.

What it all means.

Listen. The savings & loan business is essentially a service-type business.

And when you're choosing a savings & loan, we think you should expect more in the way of service than use of the photocopier or a safe deposit box.

You should expect an honest, no baloney attitude. You should be privy to all the knowledge of the business your savings & loan has stockpiled over the years. You should know how to best put your savings & loan to work for you.

And all of that is just what you get.

At our place.

Field Day Prelims Monday

The eighth annual Mathematics Field Day preliminaries will take place Monday in all Helix High college prep and honors mathematics classes.

This year's Field Day is being sponsored by the mathematics seminars of Helix and Monte Vista High Schools. Also this year, five junior high schools have been asked to participate, including La Mesa, Parkway, Lemon Grove, Spring Valley and Emerald.

Trophies are to be awarded for first to fourth places in grades 7 to 11. Also, certificates are to be awarded for places fifth to tenth. A traveling trophy is to be given to the best junior high, along with a permanent trophy. A second place trophy is to be given also.

"The preliminaries are aligned by grade for the math class a college prep student would have, that is, the ninth grade test is on Algebra I, 10th grade is on Geometry, and 11th grade is on Algebra II," Bill Best, contest director said.

"The finals will consist of easy or medium difficulty type problems taken at a high speed known as 'rapid transit'," Best said.

A.R.O. CALLING — County Animal Regulation officer John Ferrante, left, and Robert Whipple call on housewife Anita Greene as part of a door-to-door check for compliance of county codes on dog licensing and rabies control. Mrs. Greene's puppy, they found, was properly licensed, but the visits — mostly just to advise citizens about the laws— have shown that many people are unaware that the purposes of the codes are to control the threat of rabies. The county veterinarian has rabies vaccination and licensing clinics available throughout the county.

'Kite Kontest' Winners Listed

Students from three classes at Kempton Street School participated in the annual "Kite Kontest" recently, with kites entered in five categories, including "most unique", "best decorated", "biggest", "highest flying", and "best all around.

James Harless and Brian Wolstencroft won in the "biggest kite" category, "most unique" honors went to Jarvis Ballard and Kevin Solomon, and the kites of Tom Martinez and Adele Barnham were "best decorated".

"Highest flying" honors were won by Mike Olivera and Sterling Singleton, and Louis Cox and Peggy Alcorn earned "best all around" competition.

Several youngsters who participated in the school contest entered kites in the Ocean Beach Kite Festival. Winners there included James Harless, Brian Wolstencroft, Elaine Graves, Jarvis Ballard, Debbie Fowler, and Ines Riggins.

'73 Crew Classic On Mission Bay Saturday

The calm waters of Mission Bay will take on the "Ivy League" look Saturday when oarsmen from the U. S. Naval Academy row in competition for the first time in San Diego.

More than 400 oarsmen are expected to participate in the '73 Crew Classic on Mission Bay.

In addition to Navy, crews from University of Washington, Orange Coast College, UCSD, CSUSD, UCLA, UC Santa Barbara, Cal State Long Beach, Loyola, and Peralta are entered in the regatta.

The drive is to sell "bonds", raising funds to support next year's American Field Service foreign exchange students. Members of the winning class were Mrs. Sampson, left, Randy Berk, Tim Jasper, Bob Cowan, Thom Whigham, Brian Cochran, Bill Trask, Brad McDade, Randy Gale, Eric Sjogren, and Dan Reiland.

SD Gulls To Begin Final Series Tonight

Three games remain on the San Diego Gulls 1972-73 schedule as the season closes out with an exciting finish.

The Gulls and the Phoenix Roadrunners will meet tonight in San Diego and Friday in Arizona. San Diego will then close out the regular season against the Salt Lake City Golden Eagles on Saturday.

With third place all wrapped up, the Gulls now are looking t see who they will meet in the first round of the playoffs. First place finisher Phoenix or Salt Lake will provide the opposition for the Gulls. This means that all three games this weekend will be a pre-playoff look at the team San Diego will be meeting in the first round of the Lester Patrick Cup series.

Phoenix is currently in first place with a two point lead over Salt Lake. The Gulls are in third place, six points away from the second spot. Mathematically, San Diego is still within striking distance of second. The Gulls must win their remaining three games and the Eagles must lose their last four contests for the Gulls to move up in the standings.

Last weekend was a big one for Coach Jack Evans and his team. Friday night in San Diego the Gulls beat Portland 4-2 as Bob Champoux shut the door on the Buckaroos and Mike Bloom put in two goals. The start was the first one in eleven games for Champoux and he looked sharp in the nets, turning away 25 shots.

Saturday night in Salt Lake City the Gulls won an important road game over the Salt Lake Golden Eagles, 4-2. Bob Champoux was in the nets again and he stopped 33 Eagle shots including 14 in the final period. Bob Courcy tallied his 30th goal of the year, the first Gull to crack the 30 goal mark this season. Tom Trevelyan, Jim Schraefel and Nels Venerus also scored for San Diego.

Tickets for the final two regular season home games are now on sale at all Arena ticket agencies. Game time for the Gulls-Phoenix game on Thursday is 7:30 and faceoff for the Saturday night home and season finale against Salt Lake is 8 p.m.

Fighting Gulls Switch—on Radio

Beginning with the game on April 6 from Phoenix, the final two regular season games and all of the playoff action will be broadcast over KSDO Radio 1130.

Beginning also on April 6, KOGO, who has been carrying the Gulls home and away, will begin their coverage of the San Diego Padres. KSDO Radio, 1130 on the dial will carry the Gulls-Phoenix game and all Gull broadcasts for the remainder of the regular season and the playoffs beginning at 6:45 with the warmup show on Friday.

'Gypsy' is 'Outstanding' In Off Broadway Reopening

by Max Goodwin

Burlesque came back to San Diego in a much more entertaining form than it was when the Off Broadway theatre was the town's main burlesque house.

It came as a musical, and a good one — "Gypsy" — the first offering by Wortman-Hartzog Productions. Wortman and Hartzog reopened the theatre following a three month hiatus. "Gypsy", with its fun, frolic and music, will stay a month.

It is the story of Gypsy Rose Lee, who was America's leading strip tease queen when burlesque was replacing vaudeville. Gypsy reached stardom just before she was claimed by cancer.

More to the point, it is a story of Gypsy's mother, Madame Rose, whose show business determination was stronger than her morals. Gypsy's mother was smothery as portrayed by Kay Ballard. Miss Ballard, with two command performances for the Queen of England, is famous on stage, teevee, radio and in clubs. But her role in "Gypsy" does not create sympathy. She rules her fatherless brood with a mixture of greed aggressiveness, humor and waspishness — all designed to propel her daughters into the theatre's limelight.

Gypsy is sensitively played by Linda Kay Henning, lately of "Petticoat Junction" and numerous stage and teevee plays. As Gypsy, she did not acuire much love nor attention from her mother as she threads through the play as a child, an adolescent, and as a beautiful young woman.

But it was in the end that Gypsy is able to satisfy her mother's fierce desire for a show star daughter — even though the pinnacle is reached in burlesque.

Miss Ballard gives depth to her role as she oscillates from mother hen to Simon Degree. And she belts out her songs with surprising verve.

Miss Henning's Gypsy, as she is wrenched from her role as a subordinate in her mother's act to a scintillating star of the Great White Way, brought the opening night audience to its feet.

"Gypsy" is all the more entertaining because it brings with it an extra dimension to Off Broadway, missing in prior presentations. That is a theatre orchestra. And that opens the door for more musicals.

"Everything is Coming Up Roses", "All I Need is a Girl" and "Together Wherever We Go" are among the notable selections backing the opening play.

The production is unusual in that there are 35 parts involving 26 performers. The large cast is needed because Madame Rose's family is portrayed at various age levels — about five years apart. Youngsters of well-known San Diegans are used as various time sequences occurred.

Gavin MacLeod (Mary Tyler Moore show) is cast as Madame Rose's dependable admirer. His performance is outstanding.

It is a splendid mixture of drama and humor all the way through — and the audience enjoyed it.

Those old enough to remember burlesque will probably crack up during a scene near the end of the play in which Madame Rose's family is sharing a dressing room with several aging, strip tease strumpets. In that scene is what show biz is all about. There is Madame Rose wheedling her brood to a proper pitch of enthusiasm to perform while a trio of acerbic, blase strip teasers are lolling about — too worn out to care. It is the latter's G-string humor that steals the scene.

Grace Thorpe To Close Out Foothills Forum

Grace Thorpe, daughter of legendary Indian athlete Jim Thorpe but now a leader in her own right in the new Indian rights movement, will be the final speaker in the 1973 Forum of the Foothills lecture series.

Like her father, the sensation of the 1912 Olympics and later a professional football standout, Miss Thorpe is a peaceful member of the Sauk and Fox tribe of Oklahoma. But unlike her father, she is an organizer — most recently in the drive to get the federal government to give surplus land and facilities "back to the Indians."

She will describe her efforts toward a rebirth of the confidence, self-reliance, strength, health and happiness her people had "when the white man arrived in American" beginning at 7:30 p.m., April 8 in the Grossmont College gymnasium.

Since tickets to individual lectures have not been available this year, admittance to hear Miss Thorpe requires the purchase of season tickets at the door, $12 per family and $6 for an individual.

Diabetes Assn. To Benefit From May 13 Riggs-Court Battle

All proceeds from the Bobby Riggs-Margaret Court tennis match May 13 will go to the American Diabetes Association, it was announced by the charity organization.

Tickets for the much-discussed challenge match between the 55-year old former world champion and the current top woman player in the world will be available only through the San Diego chapter of the Diabetes Association. All seats are reserved at $10 each.

"We are delighted to participate in such an outstanding attraction," said Van MacNair, president of the Association's San Diego chapter. "We are grateful to Margaret Court, Bobby Riggs, and R. A. Watt of San Diego Country Estates for their significant contribution to a worthy cause."

Some 3000 tickets are available for the match on the courts of San Diego Country Estates near Ramona. All ticket applications should be directed to the American Diabetes Association, San Diego chapter, 1970 Third ave., San Diego, 92101.

Stars Of Month Listed By Athletic Foundation

The Breitbard Athletic Foundation announced star of the month selections for January and February.

Three selections were made for January. Mike Garcia, 19 year old centerman of the San Diego Juniors hockey team was named amateur star of the month.

Two professional athletes were named stars of the month in January. They included Willie Buchanon, ex-Aztec, now playing for the Green Bay Packers and Ken Broderick, San Diego Gull goalie.

Christy Fletcher of Rancho Santa Fe, who rode a horse named "Hour Glass" to the California junior equestrienne championship, was named star of the month for February.

For over 20 years we have struggled to maintain a decent behavior pattern so everyone can enjoy attending the shows at the Helix, both adults as well as children.

Albuquerque Conquistadors?

Gulls Hockey Schedule Held Up As Graham Buys into N.M. Team

By Max Goodwin

Will there be hockey games in San Diego next season?

Max McNab says there will be.

Peter Graham says there will be.

That is where the agreement ends.

Peter Graham, president of the San Diego Sports Arena wants hockey but he may prefer his own brand. That could be Albuquerque, N.M. — a newly organized team which has applied for a franchise in the Western Hockey League. Or maybe a World Hockey Assn. team will be brought in. Or maybe he would settle for Albuquerque as a Central Hockey League franchise.

Max McNab, general manager of the Gulls prefers it the way it is — a Western Hockey League team — namely the Gulls.

"I don't know about World Hockey," McNab said, "but Central Hockey wouldn't draw for us. We had to drop the interlocking schedule we had this year." Although it had not been mentioned, it would require a near-capacity Arena attendance to meet the high cost of WHA play. Not only that, the Conquistador's owner Dr. Leonard Bloom has the San Diego rights to WHA through ownership of the L.A. Sharks.

So far, Graham has not given McNab and his Gulls dates for next season. Until he does, the WHL schedule cannot be made up. Last year the Gulls operated in the Arena without a contract but there was an agreement on the dates. Dates were approved soon after the end of last season. The deadline for getting dates has passed last month. Graham pointed out that the deadline is a League rule — not his. "I have to worry about the long-range planning for the Arena."

Graham claims he is holding up dates pending the outcome of basketball. He believes that Dr. Leonard Bloom, owner of the Conquistadors will come to him for playing dates.

"When we set those dates we'll set hockey. The Gulls will have dates — and good ones," he said.

During a celebration honoring former Gull star Al Nicholson, Friday, Graham revealed that he owned 37% of the Albuquerque team.

The question of conflict of interests then arose. He could use the Albuquerque team to force out the Gulls if Albuquerque is given a WHL franchise, some feared. WHL president Bill McFarland, in town for the Nicholson reception — and other matters — looked at it this way. ". . . an owner of one franchise in a position to directly influence another franchise in the league by controlling dates and arena availability." And he said Graham was the cause of the conflict.

"Nonsense," Graham said. "The governors of WHL wouldn't put up with that for a minute. The Gulls have the WHL franchise and they have the WHL rights in San Diego. Whether they play in the Arena is another matter."

What McFarland seeks is a written lease between the Gulls and the Sports Arena. "We might be able to resolve things if Graham would give some indication that he is willing to negotiate," McFarland said. A written lease would offer less opportunity for a conflict of interest to exist, McFarland noted.

"The Western Hockey League has the conflict of interest, not me," Graham said. "They are attempting to use the discussion of the lease as the basis for granting a franchise to Albuquerque The Albuquerque franchise and the Arena lease are separate things. I won't discuss them together."

The Gulls have suggested that Graham divide next winter's choice dates up equally setting aside half of them against the possibility that the Cues will play in his arena and let the hockey interests begin planning their schedule with the remainder. The idea didn't get off the ice.

McFarland said WHL is concerned that Graham's involvement in the Albuquerque franchise had been disguised. "It's a concern to me that this was a secret until we ferreted it out," he said. "In fact one group denied it twice before finally admitting it. Why should they want to keep it a secret if there is no conflict of interest?"

Other than indicating that he would satisfy the needs of basketball first, Graham showed no inclination to discuss a hockey lease with the Gulls.

One hockey matter he had also decided was hat if he had anything to say about the New Mexico hockey team it would not be called the Albuquerque Conquistadors.

"It would be too hard to pronounce," he said.

Frank Price to Head 'Pillars of Freedom'

Frank L. Price has been named chairman of the San Diego Kiwanis Club's 13th annual Pillars of American Freedom.

Theme for the four-part series is "The Freedoms We Inherited — What Will We Pass On?" "We feel that this theme is in keeping with Kiwanis International's 1973 theme of Share Your Life," Price said.

Price retired from the FBI in 1964, after serving as Chief of the Criminal Section, FBI Headquarters, and as Special Agent-in-Charge of the FBI field divisions in San Diego, San Francisco and Hawaii.

Pillars of American Freedom provides a forum for distinguished speakers to discuss challenges and demands on Americans in a changing world.

Ken Overstreet Lone Incumbent In High School Board Campaign

Ken Overstreet, 35, of 10064 Pandora dr., La Mesa, who said he is committed to "effective, responsible education", is a candidate for re-election to the Grossmont Union High School District Board of Trustees.

Overstreet, seeking his second term on the board, is executive director of Campus Life Clubs, and director of Youth For Christ and Lifeline Camps. He served as president of the high school board during the 1971-72 year.

He was recently elected, along with Congressman John Anderson of Illinois and Evangelist Billy Graham, to the national Board of Directors of Youth For Christ International.

Overstreet is a graduate of Cal Western University and completed graduate work at the University of Geneva in the human relations field. In 1964 he was named "Outstanding Youth Director of the Year" nationally and in 1965 was named one of "Ten Outstanding Young Men of the Year" in San Diego.

The candidate said that he should be re-elected, because, if he is, he will be the only member of the board with more than two years' experience. The board has traditionally had longtime members, he said, and that his re-election is important if the board is to retain its continuity.

Overstreet defended the board's stand on the construction of Valhalla High School, the district's controversial ninth campus, which will be financed by tax money.

In 1964, Overstreet said, the voters of the district approved a bond issue which included $4 million for the contruction of Valhalla.

Other items, including libraries at El Cajon and Granite Hills High School which were included as projects in the bond issue, ran over the budgeted amount, Overtreet said, and inflation boosted the cost of Valhalla until the district was unable to construct the campus.

With the need for more money, the district had the choices of trying another bond election, which a citizen advisory committee agreed would fail, not constructing the school, or financing the project through tax money.

Because the cost of building the school rises by $66,000 each month the project is delayed, the district ruled out the idea of a bond election, which, if it was not passed, would mean several months of delay and expense.

In order to "prove to the voters that we will keep our word in building Valhalla, despite the lack of money in the bond issue," Overstreet said, and because the district's enrollment has been increased by 6,000 students since the last school was built, the board decided to finance the school through the tax.

Overstreet maintains that the present board has been conservative in spending money.

B.S. Forms Committee Against Federal OSHA

"Under the guise of promoting employee health and safety, the federal government has started a new program that could destroy all private business in this country" warned Starr A. Sallis, a local member of The John Birch Society. He said that the group was forming the East County "Nix On OSHA" Committee, to expose and then defeat the federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

"Our purpose is to show the public the damage that is being done to business by OSHA, and to show businessmen what can be done to get this latest bureaucratic monstrosity repealed," Sallis declared.

Although many Americans have never heard of OSHA, the "Nix On OSHA" Committee contends that tens of thousands of businessmen across the United States have already felt its impact. According to the "Nix On OSHA" Committee, OSHA Compliance Officers, armed with a mountain of regulations and documents, can enter any firm or shop without a warning or a warrant, to inspect for violations of federal regulations. Businessmen are subject to fines or imprisonment without a hearing or a trial, and OSHA even has the power to order their businesses closed.

The committee chairman pointed out, "OSHA officials act as prosecutor, judge, and jury in each case. In the first six months of operation, OSHA Compliance Officers visited some 9300 businesses. Of these, over seventy-five percent were found guilty of violating some OSHA regulation. And OSHA officials admitted that the remaining companies could also have been found guilty of something if the OSHA officials had looked hard enough."

GETTING READY — Fred Anderson, left, Jim Dorman, Jerry Mann, and Dell Lake go over plans for tonight's first meeting of the Lemon Grove Citizen Advisory Committee at Golden Avenue School at 7:30 p.m. Anderson is organizer of the committee. If the attendance is large enough, the meetings will be held on a regular basis, Anderson said.

Incumbent Todd Seeks Second Term On Board

John D. Todd, 45, of 8614 Alpine ave., La Mesa, who is pleased with year-round school and the conversion of elementary school kitchens to libraries, is an incumbent candidate for the La Mesa-Spring Valley School District Board of Education.

Todd, making his second appearance before the voters of the district, has served as president of the board. He was active in school affairs long before his election to the board, he said, and worked on district elections.

Father of four, he has been a member of district PTA groups and is a member of the La Mesa Lions Club. He graduated from San Diego High School and San Diego State before attending the University of Southern California Medical School and becoming a medical doctor.

Some accomplishments of the district during his stay on the board of which he is particulary proud include the year-round school program operating in Spring Valley, the conversion of elementary school kitchens to libraries, and the current formation of citizen advisory districts.

The year-round school, according to Todd, has proven better educationally and has saved the district money. The district put several schools in the Spring Valley area on the program, under which students attend school for nine weeks and take three weeks of vacation while attending school all year, because of overcrowding in the south portion of Spring Valley.

The program enabled the district to avert building another school in the area, Todd explained.

The kitchen conversion program was brought about when the district decided to prepare all hot lunches in central kitchens at junior high schools, then transport them to the elementary schools.

Todd

With the conversion to the central kitchen program, which saves the cost of maintaining kitchens in all schools and cuts back the number of kitchen employees, the district was left with empty kitchens in the elementary schools. The district uses the space for libraries, thereby expanding service at the schools without expanding facilities.

Subscription List Keeps Rollin' Along

The subscription list, like the river, just keeps rollin'.

Twelve more families said they want to keep abreast of the local news — in their local newspaper.

And each of them has said he wants to contribute to the operation of the Lemon Grove Youth Center.

As each pays his subscription, 50 cents is contributed in his name to the Center's operating fund.

To aid in getting the facility going again, the Lemon Grove Woman's Club Juniors are putting together a Walk for the Center. Time and place will be announced at a later date, a spokeswoman said.

This week's list:

Lemon Grove:
S. M. Weyer, Costada ct.
Chas. Watts, La Corta
Ford Welch, Elroy dr.
Thos. Welbaum, Madera

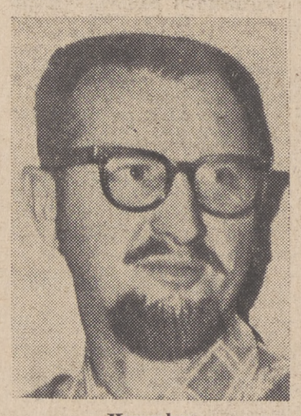
Hunsaker Seeks Link With Community For High School Board

Don Hunsaker II, 42, of 9453 Galston dr., Santee, who feels that the Grossmont Union High School District should work through community involvement to re-establish public confidence, is a candidate for that district's board of trustees.

Hunsaker, a professor of Zoology at San Diego State, indicated that the district was once considered a "lighthouse" district — outstanding in many regards — but that the district has slipped in public support in the past few years. His observation came from a time when he was a member of the California School Boards Association.



Hunsaker

"My experience and background," said Hunsaker, who was a member of the Santee School Board for six years until he moved to Columbia in 1971, "is such that I would work in the direction of community involvement to get more public support for the district."

Hunsaker was also a member of the Del Rio, Texas, school board before moving to Santee. He served with Santee as president of the board for five years, then accepted an invitation from the Colombian government to aid the country with a program of conservation and natural resources.

He returned to this country last year and resumed his position at San Diego State.

The candidate has been active in PTA, Boy Scouts, Little League, Pop Warner Football, and several conservation groups.

A higher level of community support, Hunsaker said, would enable the district to effect a lot of needed changes, including improving the level of counseling and the district's vocational education programs.

Improving the counseling program is necessary to a point that the student can have an individualized instructional program in a curriculum that is more meaningful, he said.

In this way, Hunsaker explained, those who want to become mechanics, salesmen, or computer operators can get specialized instruction instead of going into a general college preparatory program, which they may or may not be well adopted to.

"We have some very excellent counselors but they're overworked," the candidate said. It is impossible for them to devote enough energy to curriculum evaluation which is sorely needed.

The failure of the district in maintaining public support is illustrated by the Valhalla problem, Hunsaker said. When the 1967 bond money, which included $4 million for Valhalla, was spent for other things, there was a great loss of support, he said.

What the district needed was a greater effort to touch bases with the citizen and stricter attention to the pulse of the community.

Buckner Runs For Fifth LG School Board Term

H. Warren Buckner, 54, of 1744 Englewood dr., Lemon Grove, is an incumbent candidate for the Lemon Grove School District Board of Education.

Buckner, married and the father of four, is employed at General Dynamics. He has been a member of the school board for 16 years and has served the board as clerk, vice president, and president.

He has also been a member of the County School Boards Association, where he served as vice president for two years and as president. He has also been a delegate for the county to the California School Boards Association for the past six years.

Buckner served as a member of the Grossmont College site selection committee, has been involved in Scouting, Little League and Pop Warner, received a 1963 honorary life PTA membership and received the 1969 Laurels Award for the Grossmont area.

The candidate, in seeking his fifth term, sees assigning educational priorities as the biggest problem the district and board will face in the next few years.

Buckner

"We're losing enrollment, so we're losing state money," Buckner said, referring to a decline in student population in the district, which has lowered the district's average daily attendance, on which the amount of State money a district receives is based.

Additionally, he said, cuts in Federal programs are expected to make the money problem worse, although recent legislation has called for a tax re-structure expected to increase the amount of state funding for Lemon Grove while cutting the local property tax rate.

At any rate, the local district will experience chronic funding woes over the next year or so, complicated by tax re-structure which has left school funding cloudy at best.

With expected lack of funds, the district will have to assign priorities to determine which programs will be continued. Buckner indicated that the district should cut maintenance and capital improvement costs before cutting back on certificated staff and educational programs.

Buckner said that two areas with which he is particularly pleased as a trustee are local school control and involvement, and the fact that Lemon Grove has the highest average tenure of teachers in the county.

"Our teachers, on the average, stay with the district longer," he said, which has resulted in giving the local district top educators. It doesn't always work out that way, he said, but it has proved to be beneficial to the local district.

He was also happy with the current trend toward more community control and involvement with schools and said that he has been pushing for such programs for many years.

He cited community advisory councils, textbook selection, and citizen participation in formulating goals for the district.

Hawaii, USIU To Test Torero Baseball Team

Hawaii Marines and U. S. International U. provide the opposition for the U. of S.D. baseball squad this week. The Marines move in for a 7:30 p.m. game at El Toyon Park, tonight, and USIU hosts the Toreros, Saturday, at 1 p.m.

USD altered its season ledger to nine wins and eight losses last week by defeating Azusa Pacific, 17-3, and dropping a 6-2 encounter at Whittier. A meeting with Pacific Christian was postponed by rain and will be played in May.

Two-time all-American selection Kerry Dineen has been steadily raising his batting average after a slow start and the fleet center fielder now stands at .290. Included in his totals are five triples.

Spooks and witches are said to inhabit the Great Dismal Swamp in Virginia. It is further said that if an object is placed at one spot it will be moved to a different location overnight.
